2. Every three months officers of Guard Units, Control Points and battalions were required to attend a six day (60 hours - ten hours per day) refresher course on their functions, duties and responsibilities. The 8th WOP Brigade held this course in Luban (Lauban). [redacted] battalion commanders attended a similar refresher course at Ketrzyn. 50X1
3. Soldiers coming into my unit had already received their recruit training in the recruit training battalion. This battalion received its nucleus and instructors from all battalions in the brigade; NCOs from the class which was being demobilized, selected officers and EM from battalion headquarters. During training, the responsibility of the guard units to guard the border was drummed into them. 50X1
- [redacted] the mission of WOP in case of war or an invasion would be to retreat and give way to regular army units. 50X1
4. The only firing range [redacted] besides the one-stall range behind the 10th Guard Unit building, was a three-stall range located near Luban. Although ten different types of firing were conducted at this range, [redacted] the following five types: 50X1
- No 1 - firing a carbine from 100 m at 3' x 2½' targets with rings numbered from one to ten. Of three rounds fired, a score of 24 was very good; 21 - good; 17 - satisfactory; 16 and less unsatisfactory. This target was considered the most difficult.
- No 2 - firing a carbine at 150 m; unringed target
- No 2 border-type - firing a carbine from 150 m at a man-size target; four rounds per minute fired
- No 6 - firing a carbine from 150 m, 100 m and 50 m at a man-sized fixed target; three rounds fired, with the marksman moving toward the target
- TT pistol firing - firing five rounds at a ringed target marked from one to ten. A score of 34-36 - excellent; 30 - very good; 26-28 - good; 24 - passable; below 24 - unsatisfactory 50X1
5. The 10th Guard Unit had no chemical warfare training. [redacted] unit had 30 or 40 gas masks from February to May of 1950, [redacted] these were later removed to the 82d WOP Battalion headquarters. 50X1
6. [redacted] following Polish Army training academies: 50X1
- Military Academy at Warsaw
Political Academy at Warsaw
Military Academy at Krakow
7. WOP units never participated in maneuvers.

Supply and Maintenance

8. The 10th Guard had only bicycles to use as vehicles. In case the bicycles needed repairs, they were repaired in the unit or were put aside. The major weapon of the unit was the PM (SMG) 7.62mm. Small repairs on these guns were made by the unit supply NCO. Guns with major damages were exchanged for another weapon on hand in the unit supply, and were turned in to battalion supply for repairs.
9. Soldiers of the unit were given constant training and practice in keeping their weapons serviceable. 50X1
10. [redacted] the 8th WOP Brigade, and all other battalions and units kept their POL and ammunition at warehouses in Luban. [redacted] only pistol, carbine, machine gun and flare pistol ammunition, and grenades [redacted] no artillery, mortar shells or bombs were kept in them. 50X1
